IRIS

R. MARSHALL 2253 North LaSalle Gardens DETROIT, MICH.

From the number of inquiries already coming in, asking about iris, it appears that the population is emerging from the cyclone cellars, poking around the back-yards, planning bordered paths, perennial borders and mass plantings.

That's a good sign. A lot of us who have been fed through the wringer have discovered a world of pleasure in very simple things—a homely truth that many calm and contented souls were aware of right along. The dark days are far enough behind so that banker jokes and those witty references to Peruvian bonds have lost their popularity. Man has turned his face to the future, facing he knows not what readjustments. Many have resolved never to be caught again. But they will be.

Many too have made up their minds to enjoy themselves as they go along. They've seen investments in flowers and shrubs remain on a dividend-paying basis when nearly everything else just flattened out. So they're scanning seed catalogs with terrible earnestness—maybe you're one of them. Maybe you'll want an iris, or a peony. Hope so.

AN INVITATION

Whether they come to buy or just to look, flower lovers are always welcome in this garden. No appointment is necessary. If you like to see iris in bloom (there are over 500 varieties here) open the gate, come in and browse around.

Tall Bearded Iris

Plants are sent postage prepaid. Remember that when comparing prices. Shipments made any time you wish after July 1.

In the list below, following each variety name is the 1927 American Iris Society rating, based on 100. The first rating is of the specimen bloom, the second is for garden effect. Where only one rating is given, that is the 1933 A.I.S. rating.

COLLECTIONS

Many people, new in their love of iris, express a desire to get a start but don't know what to buy. These should be reminded that it is better judgment in the long run to buy three good iris for a dollar, or for five dollars, than to order a dozen outdated varieties at a bargain price. It takes no more work to care for a fine iris than it does for an unworthy one-and the reward is more satisfying. If you do not feel like selecting our own varieties, leave it to me. Tell me something about your color preferences and tell me whether you want few or many plants for the money you send. I'll make your remittance go as far as possible and guarantee satisfaction. I've never had a customer complain of a collection made up in this way. That's because get enthused and send more iris than So you'd better not order that way, should. after all-I'm almost certain to get over-generous and there's no money in that!

PEONIES

For those who like peonies, I can supply some of the finest modern varieties from a private collection that is being entirely sold out. The stock is strong and healthy. Each one of the plants will have 3 to 5 eyes. Shipment in October. Only a limited number of each variety available. ORDER NOW. Ask for price list of the entire 57 varieties—doubles, singles and Japs.

AMERICAN IRIS SOCIETY

Every iris lover should join. Cost is only $3.00 a year and you get at least four valuable iris bulletins. Send your application to me and I'll present you with an iris plant.

MICHIGAN HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

Michigan gardeners owe this organization their support. Dues $3.00 a year. You get the National Horticultural Magazine for a year and that's worth all of the $3.00. You get free admission to many lectures and flower shows. I'll propose your name if you'll send me the dues. The free iris root offer applies here too.

EVERY FLOWER LOVER SHOULD HAVE THIS BOOK

IRIS-RAINBOW FRAGMENTS by J. Marion Shull. Tells all about tall bearded iris; how to use them in the garden, care and cultivation, and how to get the best results from your plants. Order it from me with your iris plants. Fully illustrated in color. $6\frac{1}{4} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$. \$2.15 postpaid.
